

Ambassador Feinstein's Remarks at Business Summit Signing Ceremony

June 20, 2012, Business Summit, 16:00

Ladies and Gentlemen, today has been quite a day, and I would like to thank everyone here for making this signing ceremony possible. I would especially like to thank (Deputy) Prime Minister Pawlak and (Acting) Secretary Blank for their vision and leadership, and the business support organizations that organized this event: the American Chamber of Commerce in Poland, the Polish Confederation of Private Employers LEWIATAN, and the U.S. – Poland Business Council.

I would like to congratulate the companies that have signed agreements here today. These signings are exactly what President Obama had in mind when he and Prime Minister Tusk agreed to hold this Summit. The events of today are a clear indication of the importance the U.S. government attaches to the advancement of U.S.-Polish commercial ties and economic cooperation, and to our bilateral relationship overall.

Now we see the way forward to broadening and deepening our bilateral business agenda. From New York to Warsaw, and from Silicon Valley to Aviation Valley, let us work together to build success and prosperity for our companies and our people. Thank you very much.
